WORKERS IN N. Y. HOTELS JOIN STRIKE

Building Employees' Walkout Assumes Magnitude

New York, March 6.—(AP)—Hotel workers were called away from their jobs today in support of the building employees strike which leaders prepared to extend to Manhattan's important Grand Central zone, Brooklyn and Queens before midday.

The first hotels affected were the Barbizon-Plaza and the Windsor, both of 58th street on the near west-side. Strike leaders said 30 employees left the Barbizon-Plaza and 35 were called out of the Windsor.

The managers of the hotels said swift replacements of the strikers had enabled them to continue service to the guests.

Other smaller, hotels were visited by strike leaders who reported that union members were responding to the walk-out call.

The action came shortly after Chris Houlihan, president of the Hotel Workers' union, left his offices with the announcement that he would "pull" the hotels.

Subsidiary Union.

The hotel workers union is a subsidiary of the building service employees union which is conducting the strike.

The "general strike" threat voiced earlier in the week by James J. Bambrick, head of the building service employees union, received a measure of support from Paul N. Coulcher, secretary-treasurer of the hotel and restaurant employees union.

Coulcher announced that 5,000 kitchen and dining room workers in 100 hotels would join the picket lines of the striking workers.

With the strike spreading, the police department continued extraordinary precautions to protect property and citizens in the event of violence.

Police Reserves Out.

More than 100 policemen were dispatched to Harlem and Washington Heights, sections to which the walk-out spread yesterday following a break-down in peace parades.

"Flying squads" of motorcycle police were established in the downtown area of Manhattan.

Varying figures concerning the effectiveness and extent of the strike came from union officials and police. The union claimed that of 10,395 buildings affected, agreements had been signed with 1,448. Police reported that the number of buildings affected was 1,820, and that agreements had been signed with 115 of these.

MENINGITIS IS RIFE IN HARLAN CO., KENTUCKY

Harlan, Ky., March 6.—(AP)—A tight quarantine was clamped down on disease-ridden Harlan county today as state and county health authorities fought to check the rampant spread of spinal meningitis, 90 cases of which have caused 32 deaths.

The quarantine order was issued by County Health Officer W. P. Caywood after the Harlan County Medical Association voted to ban church services, close theaters and other amusement centers and prohibit public meetings?

Upon the recommendation of Dr. F. W. Caudill, state epidemiologist, who said children were "better off than anywhere else," schools were not included in the quarantine.

Fourteen schools, however, have already been closed in communities where the disease is most severe.

Tyler at Committee Meeting in Chicago

Cal G. Tyler, head of the department of the public health and safety of the city commission, was in Chicago today attending a meeting of the committee on police instruction of the Illinois Municipal League. Sessions are being conducted throughout the day at the Palmer House and plans for the instruction of police departments in cities holding members in the League will be completed and instructors selected. Dixon is expected to be one of the first cities in Illinois in which the police department will receive the special course of instruction.

INVESTIGATION OF GEN. HAGOOD CASE REJECTED

Senate Committee Says His Criticism of WPA Violated War Code

Washington, March 6.—(AP)—The senate military committee today voted 12 to 2 against the proposed investigation of the removal of Major General Johnson Hagood from command of the Eighth Corps Area for criticizing federal spending.

Only minutes before this action, President Roosevelt at his press conference refused to comment on the Hagood case.

In rejecting the resolution of Senator Metcalf (R-R.I.) for the inquiry, the committee upheld a sub-committee of three which unanimously recommended disapproval of the resolution.

The sub-committee, composed of Senators Logan (D-Ky) and Carey (R-Wyo), declared in its report that while army officers should be permitted to answer legitimate questions before congressional committees without subjecting themselves to discipline or punishment, freedom of speech as guaranteed by the constitution does not mean "a license" to use language which may be interpreted as critical of the president, the congress or other government officials.

General Hagood was ordered to his home in South Carolina to await orders after he had testified before a house appropriations sub-committee and referred to WPA funds as "stake money."

"Violated Article of War"

The military subcommittee declared language critical of the president in such instances was in violation of the sixty-second article of war prescribed by Congress.

It added that in this particular case Hagood "by other language could have conveyed to the committee his opinion that it would be much better to expend public funds for the building of quarters and barracks for housing the army than for purposes for which he considered wasteful and unnecessary."

The report added that "ample opportunity was given him to revise his testimony, which he declined to do."

The report said there was "no necessity" for an investigation to determine the persons responsible for General Hagood's removal, one of the provisions of the Metcalf resolution. It said under the constitution the president is commander-in-chief of the army and the order of removal stated that it was "by direction of the president."

Talk of $2,000,000,000 Total is Heard on Capitol Hill

Washington, March 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today there would be at least one more conference of next year's relief problem before any decision would be reached on the amount of money he will ask congress to appropriate.

He made this reply to press conference questions, as a Democrat urged a $1,000,000,000 limit on the new appropriation and a Republican demanded a nation-wide inquiry into charges of political "exploitation of human misery."

The president said he was continuing his studies of federal expenditures, but could not announce any absolute figure on savings. He said he and his fiscal aides were getting close to the bottom of the barrel in scraping for funds to complete this year's relief program.

At his last press conference the chief executive said he expected to submit his relief estimate to congress sometime between March 10 and March 19. There has been no authentic hint of what figure, if any, the president has in mind.

Talk of Twi Billions

There have been reports that this sum might be $2,000,000,000, more or less. But Chairman Buchanan (D-Tex.) of the house appropriations committee stood pat on his contention that congress should not grant "anything like $2,000,000,000."

"The most I have ever said I would stand for was a billion and a half dollars," he said. "And I have always said it ought not to be over $1,000,000,000."

It was Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) who asked the wide investigation of reports that politicians collect campaign funds from workers on relief.

Previously, he had asked Administrator Harry L. Hopkins to look into reports that the Democratic county committee in Indiana county, Pa., was calling on works progress administration employees for funds.

"Dumb Politicians"

Declaring that he could not be responsible for "dumb politicians" who write letters to WPA people, Hopkins replied:

"The politician who asked for the contributions was told in words of one syllable that our staff was under no obligation to contribute, and that their jobs would be fully protected in case they did not contribute."

Republican Volunteers" to Get Out Anti-New Deal Vote in Every County at Election in November

The conference was told that in no recent election has more than 60 per cent of Republican voting strength cast its ballots.

The conference was told that in no recent election has more than 60 per cent of Republican voting strength cast its ballots.

A unit of the "Republican Volunteers" is planned in every county of every state, organization leaders said. Under the plan counties will be broken down, polling lists checked and at least two persons given responsibility for every 20 voters in every precinct, MacLafferty said.

The organization is to work as a general Republican club for 1936 and will delegate responsibilities to both men's and women's groups.

BYERS HOME IS BADLY DAMAGED BY FIRE TODAY

Considerable damage, the amount of which had not been estimated today, was done to the John H. Byers residence, 1017 Highland avenue, at 7:25 A. M. today when fire broke out in an upstairs room over the kitchen.

The fire department hurriedly answered the call and battled the flames about half an hour before the fire was under control. Starting from an unknown cause in an upstairs room over the kitchen the flames gained considerable headway into the attic and through the roof before they were discovered.

Damage from water and fire will necessitate repapering of the entire house, while some of the furniture was also lost. The entire damage is covered by insurance.

The fire department answered two more calls at noon and at 1:45 P. M. today when roof blazes were reported at the Taylor residence, 1302 West Second street, and at the Henry Floto home on North Brinton avenue. Only minor damage was reported.

SHOW AT HOSPITAL

Rehearsals for the Elks Revue was held Thursday evening at the club house. Amateur acts for the production have been decided upon and the troupe will give its first performance Monday night at the Dixon state hospital. The Revue at the Dixon theater will be given Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

GUFFIN VERY ILL

Editor Ed Guffin of the Paw Paw Times who was operated up on the first of the week in a Chicago hospital for the relief of gall stones, is reported to be in a critical condition. Word from relatives states that his life is despaired of. Mr. Guffin who is well known throughout the county, has been very ill for weeks. He has many friends in Dixon who regret to learn of his serious condition.

RIVER ABOUT SAME

Rock river continued at about the same level today as yesterday with apparently little danger of floods unless heavy rains set in. The ice above the dam remained intact today when a sudden drop in temperature insured its anchorage to the shore for several days longer. The river was bankful as far as Grand Detour and below the dam water was high, but several feet below the banks except for the stretch near the high school tennis courts where it was bankful.

BILLS SENT TO GOVERNOR

Bills sent to the governor by the Senate:

Appropriated $700,000 for pumps at the flooded Johnston City mine.

Prohibited county welfare commissioners for holding or seeking political jobs and permitted the state to fix salaries of employees in counties under the old age pension counts.

Two Clerks Per County

He said the average number of clerks permitted downstate was two per county. Employee salaries are to average $85 per month and county superintendents $120, with the total expense downstate limited to $28,000 monthly, or about 5 per cent of the estimated appropriations. Andrews said he planned to reduce the costs to 2.7 per cent next year.

The state is not going to approve employment of a lot of people to build up political machines," Andrews said.

The present Cook county public welfare bureau will handle the pensions there.

Act Under Study

At Washington it was announced last night the Social Security Board has started its study of the Illinois act and may announce next week whether it conforms to federal requirements.

Neither Andrews nor Director A. L. Bowen of the state public welfare department would predict how much of the $30 a month maximum the state would be able to pay to the persons over 65 years old and eligible for assistance.

Report Major KILLED

Addis Ababa, March 6.—(AP)—A British Red Cross worker, Major G. A. Burgoyne, was killed by a bomb dropped from an Italian plane, an Ethiopian government communiqué said today, while participating in an Ethiopian withdrawal back of the northern front.

Burgoyne, 61 years old, a transport officer in the Ethiopian Red Cross organization, had been returning from Amba Alaji to Quorom, 30 miles south of Amba Alaji, with the forces of Ras Keboda. A heavy Italian air bombardment was reported in that sector.

Burgoyne, a veteran of the South African and World Wars, escaped injury in an Italian bombing of a Red Cross depot last November at Walde, a town on Lake Ashangi, 60 miles south of Amba Alaji.

The original report of the latest bombardment said seven patients were killed yesterday in an attack on a British ambulance camp near Quorom, but that none of the personnel was injured.

Fresh Ethiopian reports, however, said three Kenya natives, British subjects, were wounded in the bombing and succumbed to their injuries.

Deny Italian Claims

The Ethiopian government communiqué also denied formally Italian claims of fresh victories on the northern front.

A battle is developing in the mountains about Amba Alaji, the government announced, in its blanket denial of Italian claims of victory in that sector.

Ras Mulugata, minister of war, with an army of imperial guardsmen, was reported to have proceeded north from Walde, 60 miles south of the main northern lines.

Ethiopian officials asserted the Italian claims of victory were issued with a view to impressing the League of Nations in its negotiations either for peace or fresh sanctions.

Emperor Haile Selassie himself was believed to have arrived in the north to lead his forces in what some thought might be the start of a decisive battle.

The Addis Ababa populace was aroused by the appearance of a tri-motored plane, believed to be Italian, which circled over the capital. Machine guns and anti-aircraft guns were fired at the plane, but it was flying high and escaped untouched.

LEGISLATURE IN
RECESS AFTER 4
MONTHS' SESSIONLaw Makers Adjourned
Until After April
Primary Election

Springsfield, Ill., March 6—(AP)—In more than four months of controversy and delays, the three concurrent special sessions of the Illinois legislature enacted new laws on only a part of the subjects recommended by Governor Horner.

The first and third special sessions adjourned sine die today while the second session on relief recessed until April 21.

Social security was the major issue before the first session, which convened on Oct. 28, and for the first time since 1871 overrode a governor's veto as part of the prolonged controversy over old age pensions.

The second session meeting Jan. 8 was limited to unemployment relief. It appropriated $10,000,000 from the treasury balance for use of the unemployed, voted unanimously to terminate the work of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission on May 1 then left unsettled a proposal to reinstate the IERC with full authority.

Election law reform was the biggest controversy placed before the third session, convened on Feb. 5 by the governor as a means of retaliating against the political opposition of the Kelly-Nash Democratic organization.

Weeks of Debate

Amendment of the 1935 old age pension act caused weeks of debate during the sessions prolonged by lengthy weekend recesses and slack attendance of the first session. The changes were enacted after Jan. 1, the date on which the pension payments were scheduled to have been started. The first money has not been paid.

Washington officials have not yet ruled whether the amendments conform with federal regulations and whether the federal government will pay half of the $30 pensions to destitute persons of 65 years.

The old age pension appropriation was increased from $5,000,000 to $9,000,000 for this year.

Republicans and Chicago Democrats won the wrangling and provided "home rule" in local administration of pensions as Horner's veto of a companion bill was decisively beaten in both houses.

The legislature refused to pass unemployment compensation bills and did not follow administration requests that the blind and mothers' pension laws be changed to qualify for federal contributions.

The insurance code was defeated by the senate for the second time in two years. Insurance Director Ernest Palmer sponsored the bulky bill as an effort to strengthen state laws and protect policyholders.

Amended Traffic Code

The session also amended the 1935 traffic code to return to police magistrates and justices of the peace jurisdiction over violations, but did not enact a drivers' license law.

A long list of secondary bills also were passed, including several validations, appropriations and authorizations for federal grants.

The second session went contrary to Horner's wishes by taking $10,000,000 of surplus treasury funds, ear-marked for institutional building, to help finance the IERC during the winter relief crisis.

Both houses voted unanimously to take the commission out of the relief business on May 1, after re-submitted criticism of the IERC.

A movement there was started to restore the IERC with authority limited to the allocation of state relief funds to counties.

Administration of relief after May 1 is to be in the hands of the local authorities, without supervision or social workers from the state commission.

Revised Tax Levy

The Lantz bill program to require Chicago and its suburban townships to levy pauper relief taxes again was an issue. The series of bills opposed by Chicagoans were passed by both houses but the measure taking a three-mill tax mandatory if state aid is to be given is still before the senate for concurrence in an amendment.

Other bills on which action is pending would set aside one-half, instead of one-third, of the sales tax revenues for relief.

Except for labor bills, the third special session was directly involved with the political campaign.

The senate this week killed the permanent registration "honest elections" bills by which Gov. Horner sought to strike at his Democratic opposition headed by Mayor Edward J. Kelly. These bills passed the house last week.

There were no roll calls on anti-Kelly bills seeking to curtail the expenditures of the Chicago consolidated park district.

Of major importance were a series of five "agreed" bills to strengthen the labor laws in conformity with the rulings of the Illinois Supreme Court. These bills provide for new laws on occupational diseases, safety of workers and use of blowers on abrasive machines, revise the workers' compensation law and place jurisdiction in the hands of the industrial commission.

The price for milk delivered in last half of February is $1.85 per cwt. for 4 per cent milk delivered and accepted.

An entirely new class of air planes, designated as TB, or torpedo-bomber, will be added to the U. S. navy's air fleet. Previously, torpedo and bombing planes have been separate types.

In the first 10 months of 1935, Sweden imported 7278 passenger cars and 147 trucks.

BEGGAR'S HORSES
By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton
C. WREN tells a story of six British officers who visited a holy man in India. As they were leaving, the holy man asked each of them what he would choose if he could have what he most desired.

They took it as a kind of game, and each answered quite lightly, but very sincerely. One of them, unabashed, said he would like to be the richest man in the world—to have as much money as he wanted.

One wanted to be the strongest man in the British Army—no, the strongest man on earth. Another, whose father and grandfather had died, early asked for the longest life possible to any man.

One, who always had the feeling that life might bring tragedy, asked to be happy. Another who had for years been battling with ill-health, wanted above all things to be free and have perfect health.

Still another put all his desires, very simply, in the wish to be safe. When the game was over, to surprise the holy man told them that each man would possess to the full, what he said he desired.

The rest of the story tells what came of it. Before the end every man came to feel it was the most tragic thing in the world to have what he wanted more than anything else in all the world.

The strong man came to a terrible death which his strength made possible. The brave man endured what it is torture to imagine; and the rich man found his wealth a curse and wanted to be rid of it.

The happy man found tragic futility in an insane asylum where he discovered to his huge delight that he had as many fingers as toes. The man with long life wished many a time that he could die.

At last, each man felt he had been doomed to have what he wanted, and that it was his worst fate. The lesson is that what we want is one thing, and what we need may be a very different thing.

The wise old Bible is right—who knows what is best for him and who can rightly direct his own life? If all our prayers were answered, it might be our worst punishment. It is better to trust and obey.

TEXAS CENTENNIAL

Texas is celebrating its 100th anniversary beginning this week. The celebration will be continued throughout the summer because the 100th anniversary of any area so large and diversified, with so many interesting features in its history, can hardly be observed in a single day or week.

The anniversary being observed now is not that of the statehood, but of the area's independence from the Republic of Mexico. Texas is the only American state that was an independent republic prior to annexation to the United States. This is only one of the unique features of the Lone Star state.

Our reliable cyclopedia informs us that Texas has flown flags of five governments. Residents of the area have been under the banners of Spain, France, Republic of Mexico, Republic of Texas and the United States of America.

Taking the United States as a whole, Texas is not, properly speaking, a western state; although we of Illinois usually think of it as being "away out west." Texas is almost equidistant from the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. If one could lift the state bodily from its western borders touching New York, the city of Texarkana, on its eastern edge, would be about half way to France. Or, if one should start from El Paso in the west to Chicago, he would be just leaving the great state of Texas when his journey to Chicago was half completed.

In area, Texas is larger than any European country except Russia. In terms of other states of the Union, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin and Michigan could be placed within the borders of Texas and still leave room for a few cattle ranches. In terms of miles, Texas has 265,896 square miles of area. California, America's next largest state, is about half the size of Texas. In population, Texas has only a few more citizens than the City of New York.

The Republic of Mexico gained independence from Spain in 1821. On March 2, 1836, the Texans, including about 20,000 Americans who had settled there, declared their independence from Mexico while the battle of the Alamo was raging. On April 21, 1836, Gen. Sam Houston led his Texan troops against Santa Ana's forces at San Jacinto and forced the murderous general to sign away Texas. In March, 1845, Texas was admitted to the Union.

At the outbreak of the Civil War there was strong secessionist sentiment in the state and finally it joined the confederacy, but General Houston, father of the Republic of Texas, refused to recognize the secession and went into seclusion. With a few flurries over a new constitution Texas was readmitted to the Union soon after the war and has been, in many ways, one of the Union's outstanding states ever since.

The term, Lone Star state, is taken from the single star on the flag of the Republic of Texas. The name Texas, comes from a tribe of Indians who inhabited the territory, and means "friendly."

"BREATHING SPELL" A FAKE

It is reported in a telegraphic dispatch that Representative Chester Thompson of Illinois, after hearing the president's tax message, said curtly:

"I'm not for the suggestions mentioned in the message. A bill drafted along such lines would have a very adverse effect upon business. We have been depending on industry to start absorbing the unemployed in the very near future. Now we are asked to attack industry. The message is hard to reconcile with the so-called 'breathing spell' announcement."

Mr. Thompson is a member of the ways and means committee of the house of representatives, which originates tax legislation.

In so declaring himself, the representative does not break wholly with the administration, which has two personalities. One personality is that of Secretary Roper of the department of commerce, who makes the reassuring talks to business men and organizes committees of business men to appear to support the president. The other personality is that of Professor Tugwell, who delivers the wallop at the profit system, favoring the nonprofit system, which is communism.

Roper gets the reassurance, but Tugwell gets the action.

In taking his position, Representative Thompson is standing by the president's words and against the Tugwell philosophy in line of which the president acts.

Beyond that, and laying aside the matter of what the administration is for or against, Thompson goes directly to the heart of the problem when he says we have been depending upon industry to start absorbing the unemployed. That means the heavy industries, which make what the economists call capital goods, such as new equipment for factories, and for transportation companies and for the building industry. There is where the lag has been. There is where it is now.

Politics doesn't put men to work. Business puts men to work. It is true that what the politicians do has a great deal to do with whether or not business puts men to work.

The liquidation of the war period and of the subsequent boom has been substantially completed. When business is permitted to have any confidence in the future of business investments, when it can see that there is a chance to make a dollar and to keep it if it invests some dollars, it will respond. Completion of the liquidation and the backlog of demands for goods and the general world improvement all dovetail to help business along, but it will go faster and employ more persons if it incurs fewer wallops on the head whenever its head shows above the water.

We never heard Representative Thompson lay claim to much knowledge about the constitution, and we do not know that he has undertaken to speak with any authority on reforming the monetary system of the country, but as a business man he knows the feeling a business man has when he has a notion to go ahead and then feels an unexpected blow.

Democrats who thought that recovery would be much farther on the way in three and a half years after the last presidential election, regardless of who was elected, and expected to take to themselves the credit, are now facing the fact that the American Federation of Labor reports that there still are 12½ million persons unemployed, and that employment can come only by way of revived business.

Taft Is Ohio's 'Favorite Son'

Chosen as Ohio's "favorite son" for the Republican presidential nomination at the national convention in June, Robert A. Taft, above, son of the late President William Howard Taft, will oppose Senator William E. Borah in the bitterly contested race for the Buckeye state's 52 delegates. Taft is a former state senator and long has been prominent in G. O. P. councils.

Milestones of American Genius

BOOKER T. WASHINGTON

THE greatest name in the history of the American Negro belonged to a man born in slavery, who never knew who his father was, nor even the exact date of his birth. His mother named him Booker Taliaferro when he was born, in 1858 or 1859. He himself later added Washington as a surname.

Arriving at the Institute, in Alabama, he became the leading force in the rehabilitation and education of his race. Tuskegee Institute, famed throughout the country for its pioneer work in Negro education, is a monument to his life's labors. It is fitting that Tuskegee should also be the site of the imposing memorial shown above, symbolic of his services in drawing off the cloak of ignorance from his race. It was erected in 1922 and was subscribed entirely by Negroes.

The Emancipation Act, which freed Booker T. Washington at the age of four or five did little to make his life easy. There were no schools for Negroes in the little Virginia town where he lived, and at a tender age he was put to work in the mines. Some how learned to spell out a few words and thus glimpse into the world of knowledge fired his appetite for education.

PUERTO RICAN INSURRECTION IS FRUSTRATED

U. S. Authorities Act to Break Up Ring of Plotters

BULLETIN
San Juan, P. R., March 6—(AP)—Puerto Rico's National Guard mobilized and held in armories during the last 24 hours, was demobilized today, authorities believing that the danger of disorders following the arrest of Nationalist leaders was past.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, March 6—(AU)—United States authorities advanced their campaign today to break up an alleged plot to provoke a Puerto Rican insurrection, seeking to put a definite end to the movement.

The federal activities resulted in the seizure of a loaded rifle, a bomb and a number of documents in addition to the arrests yesterday of seven Nationalists.

The seven men were released under $10,000 bond each after Pedro Albizu Campos, Nationalist leader and alleged chief of a movement to overthrow the United States government in Puerto Rico by force, entered pleas of innocence for all.

They faced preliminary hearing March 19 to answer three charges—inciting to insurrection, recruiting soldiers and conspiracy to overthrow the government—while a grand jury investigation of Nationalist activities was arranged.

Leader Called Dangerous
(Secretary Ickes said at Washington that the government would prosecute Albizu, considered a "very dangerous person," for treason.)

The loaded rifle and bomb which were seized were held in a locked safe of United States Marshall Draughon's office. The authorities said 50 wooden rifles, apparently used for drilling, also were found at Albizu's headquarters.

Among the records taken were recruiting cards, bearing the printed heading: "Army of Liberation, General Headquarters."

The Nationalist leader, a Harvard graduate, called upon his followers to win independence for the island by one means or another authorities charged, suggesting that if the army were called out against them, the Nationalists could then make the question of Puerto Rican freedom an international issue.

The Country Doctor

A Novelsation of the Twentieth Century-Fox Film, Starring the Dionne Quintuplets With Jean Hersholt, Dorothy Peterson, June Lang, Michael Whalen and Slim Summerville

HERE'S THE SUMMARY OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS
DR. JOHN LUKE, country doctor in the little north woods settlement of Moosetown, goes to Montreal to appeal to company officials to give Moosetown a hospital.

His nephew, TONY, who flew to Moosetown with antitoxin during a diphtheria epidemic, remains there, much interested in MARY MacKENZIE, daughter of the lumber company manager. The two admit their love for each other but MacKENZIE, determined to end the romance, forces Tony into a fight, later obliges him to leave Moosetown.

In Montreal Dr. Luke's appeal is refused. He returns to Moosetown, learns young DR. WILSON has been sent to replace him. It is discovered that Dr. Luke has never received a license to practice and he is threatened with arrest.

There seems nothing to do but leave. Dr. Luke goes to the boat, about to depart, when ASA WYATT appears, begging the doctor to come to his home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XI.

Dr. Luke strode off briskly with Asa Wyatt, leaving the others staring after him. Nurse Kennedy made one last effort.

"But Doctor, the boat—"

"The boat can go to—Montreal!" he returned.

Then Constable Ogden made his bid. "You can't do it, Doc! It's—I LEGITIMATE—when you haven't got a license!"

The doctor turned short. "It is, eh?" he shot back. "Well, don't forget this! You've got seven children yourself—and I didn't have a license for THEM either!"

Jim Ogden gulped. Nurse Kennedy, with a resigned shrug, started to follow the doctor and Wyatt. The three started in the doctor's car on the long, rough road that led to the Wyatt's unpainted and isolated house.

No man was ever more disheartened and perplexed than Jim Ogden. He turned to Authority, in the only form in which he knew it—that is, he drove to the MacKenzie house. There in the MacKenzie living room, with Mary listening intently, Ogden laid bare his predicament.

"Don't you see, boss? The Doc's my friend!" he pleaded. "Why he bring all my children into the world." With a gesture toward Mary—and your own girl, too, don't forget!"

MacKenzie listened coldly, and without a flicker of expression as Mary added her plea: "Daddy, you CAN'T let him arrest the doctor!"

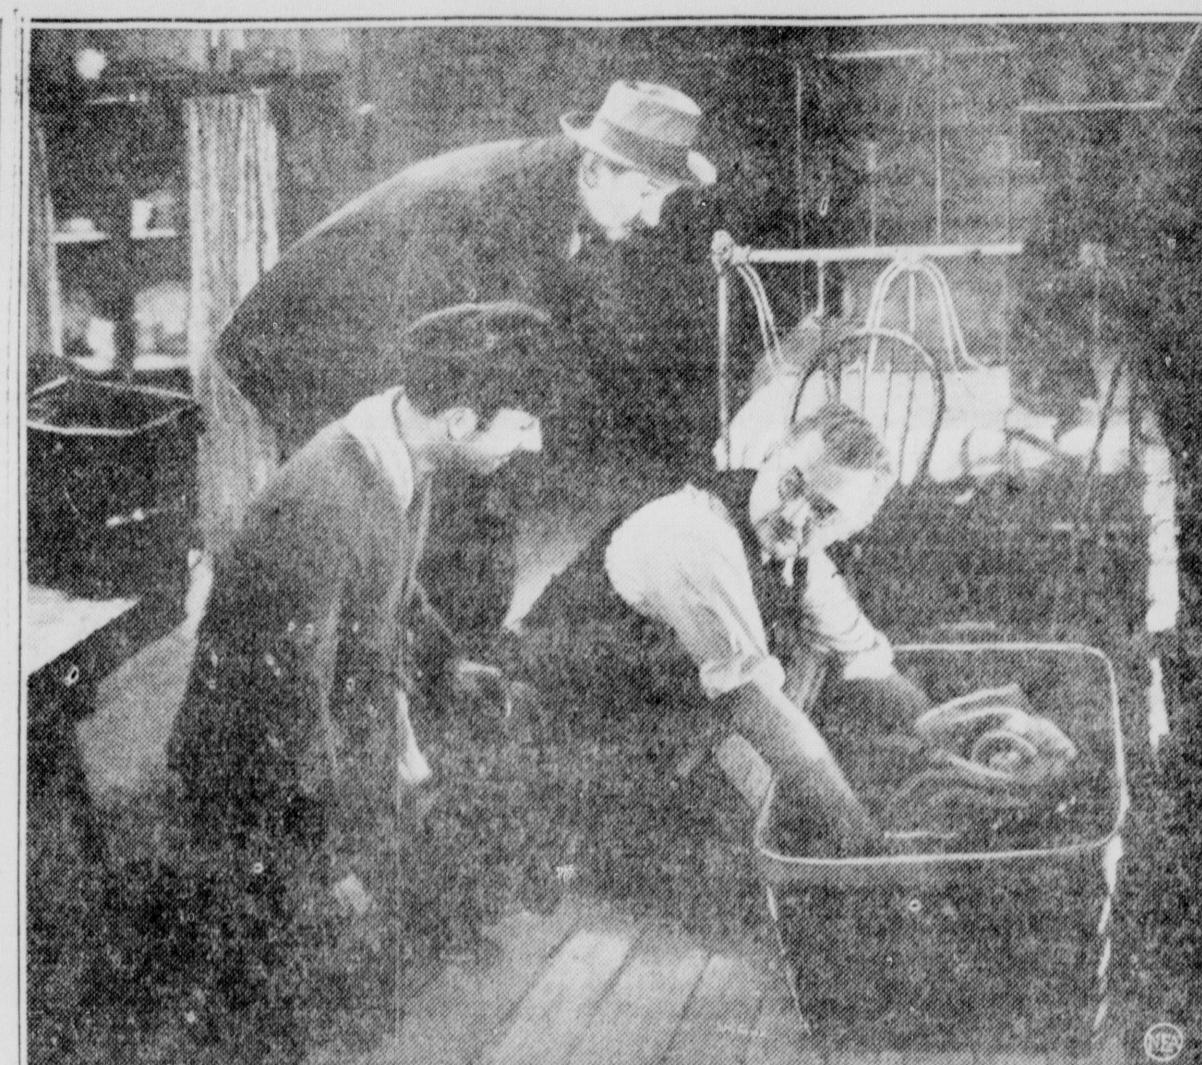

"Is Dr. Luke above the law?" asked MacKenzie, ignoring Mary.

"No, I reckon not, but—"

"Are you?"

"No-o-o-O."

"Then what more is there to say? As constable, you will proceed to do your duty." Jim Ogden looked helplessly at MacKenzie for a moment, and then shuf-

"But it ain't possible!" feebly protested Wyatt. "You can't have that many—all at one time!"

"Heat some more bricks!" Dr. Luke told Wyatt crisply.

Heed silently out of the room.

"Another daughter, Asa," he said to Wyatt, who was arranging the warmed blanket in a market basket beside the stove, "and just about the tiniest I believe I've ever seen."

"How's—how's Mama?" asked Wyatt tremulously.

"Mama's fine," reassured Dr. Luke, giving Asa a pat on the back as he dived back into the curtained room.

"Ma's gone to bed," he announced. The party filed silently into the Wyatt house, which was little more than a single room with rough board floor. An alcove was closed off by curtain, none too clean. Dr. Luke went immediately into this alcove. Nurse Kennedy, all business, began to prepare for eventualities.

Ogden was more judicial. "All right, Father Goose," he snapped at Asa. "Let's get busy. Get that fire built up. And get those kids over to a neighbor's. Not that I ought have to tell YOU what to do," she added ironically.

As Asa Wyatt fluttered uncertainly, fetching an armful of wood, shooing children out from under foot, Dr. Luke emerged abruptly from the curtained alcove. He nodded briefly to Nurse Kennedy and began to roll up his sleeves to wash his hands at a washstand in the corner.

"All right, Asa, get 'em out," said Nurse Kennedy crisply.

Asa obediently began herding his six youngsters together. He had gotten the flock as far as the gate, on the way to the Jessups', just over the rise on the same road, when another car drove up to his front gate and Constable Ogden pulled out.

"Y'aint after me, are yuh, Jim?" asked Asa apprehensively. "I ain't done nothin'."

"No?" queried the morose Ogden, with a meaning glance toward the lighted window. "Well, I hear different." And he strode on toward the house, leaving Asa agape.

Constable Ogden walked into the Wyatt house and into the very midst of hurried preparations for the expected event. With some vague idea of protecting his friend, he began a protest. "Listen, Doc—" he said plaintively.

"Got no time to argue with you now," snapped the doctor. "I've got a very sick woman in there. Be more to the point if you'd grab an armful of wood out there and bring it in."

"But, Doc," protested the constable weakly, "Don't you realize that if you go on with this it'll be a crime? I'll have to arrest you!"

"All right, Jim," said the doctor, shortly. "Got to give me time to commit the crime first, though, don't you?" And the doctor disappeared once more behind the curtains of the alcove.

Asa Wyatt came back in with an armful of wood, stoked the stove, and sat down heavily. He and the constable looked at one another across the wooden table. Both were acutely miserable. Asa, despite his extensive experience in fatherhood, was more apprehensive than most. And Jim felt guiltily that he was somehow compounding a felony.

Minutes passed, broken only by a dull crackling in the stove, the ticking of an old-fashioned clock, slight swishings as Nurse Kennedy moved about the bedroom, and an occasional low moan. Suddenly both men stared wildly at one another. There came distinctly from behind the curtain the faint, mewling cry of a very small and very new baby.

"Warm a blanket, quick!" snapped Nurse Kennedy, poking her head suddenly through the curtains. Wyatt moved to obey, and as the constable waited in uncertainty, Dr. Luke stepped briskly through the curtains with an infant bundled in his hands.

"Heat a brick and put it between 'em there in the basket!" And the doctor popped back into the bedroom.

"Just plim' up the evidence, that's all he's doin'," meditated the constable, reaching for the drink. The fiery liquor was half down his throat when the sharp voice of Nurse Kennedy cut through the room.

"Another blanket!" she demanded. Ogden choked. Wyatt stammered, "But I ain't go no more blankets."

"Then get something else, and quick," snapped the nurse's voice. "We can't send 'em back, you know!"

Again the curtains parted, and again Dr. Luke came catapulting through the swinging curtains. "Gosh!" he muttered. "triplets! Looking to neither right nor left, he deftly deposited the third baby in the basket.

"Heat more bricks," he told Wyatt crisply. "Got any more cotton?"

"Nurse got it all," quavered Wyatt.

"Any sheep's wool, clean?"

"Yes, I think—on the porch!"

"Get it. Warm it on the bricks and wrap it around 'em. Be awful careful." The doctor was beginning to look worried, with an expression like the which neither of the two waiting men had ever seen. Immediately he ducked back into the bedroom. Asa could be heard stamping about on the wooden porch in the darkness.

"Look—" he stammered incompletely. "Four. Where'd he get—Look. Four!"

"Yeah! I know!" sympathized the constable, tilting the jug for another drink. "I stopped countin' 'em—afraid maybe I'd go completely batty."

"But it ain't possible!" feebly protested Wyatt. "You can't have four—all at one time!"

"Mebbe you can't," said Constable Jim, with just a note of hysteria in his voice. "But I been here all the time, and there ain't been any brought in from outside. Lordy, I always used to believe all I see, but after this . . ."

From the bedroom came a gasp, an awed tone. "Gosh!" that evidently was the doctor's, and the face of Nurse Kennedy, poking her head again through the curtains.

The constable had an inspira-

"But, Doc," protested the constable weakly. "Don't you realize that if you go on with this it'll be a crime? I'll have to arrest you!"

Hastily wiping sweat from his forehead, the doctor dashed back into the bedroom.

Wyatt returned then with an armful of wool, which he began warming at the stove. Jim was reaching to pour another drink when Asa's eyes strayed to the basket, where four tiny creatures lay on the warm blankets and Jim's coat, mewing and crying faintly.

Wild-eyed and tousled, Dr. Luke emerged from the bedroom with a fifth bundle in his hands. Like a man in a trance he crossed the room, knelt, and laid the tiny bundle in the basket.

"Gosh! My goodness!" he muttered in awed tones. "I never in my life . . . My gosh!" he repeated unsteadily. "quintuplets!"

Government in Business

By T. N. CARVER
Professor Emeritus, Harvard University

In all the welter of discussion over the question of the government's attitude to business, there are a few certainties. One is that there are some products which private enterprise can furnish and others which it can not. Any product or service for which users and beneficiaries will pay voluntarily, or without government coercion, can be and is actually supplied by private enterprise.

There are needed products and services, however, for which beneficiaries will not pay voluntarily. Such things can be paid for only by coercive payments called taxes. Government is the only power to which we can entrust the power of coercion. Therefore, if goods and services of this kind are to be provided, they must be provided by government. They include such things as safety, sanitation, education for the masses who can not or will not pay voluntarily and conservation of natural resources. There is plenty for governments to do.

Another certainty is that if the government goes into competition with private enterprise, the public gets no benefit. Address questions to the author, care of this newspaper.

POLO NEWS

By KATHRYN KEAGY
POLO—The Rebekah Lodge will hold a school of instruction at their hall Thursday, March 12. Mrs. Iva M. Crowell of Rockford will be the instructor. There will be an afternoon and evening session with a picnic supper at 6 o'clock.

A third certainty is that an umpire is needed, with power to enforce his decisions to settle disputes among individuals. Such disputes exist, and unless they are settled by some authority, there will be much confusion and waste of human energy.

In view of these certainties, concerning which there can be no reasonable dispute, it would seem wiser, for the present at least, for the government to stick to its own job. After it has learned to do its own work reasonably well, which will take a long time, there will still be time to consider entering other fields.

Meanwhile, private enterprise will probably be improving its work in its own field. It will be interesting, for those who live long enough, to watch the race. If government improves its work in its own field faster than private enterprise improves its work, there might be some reason for encouraging government to expand its field of operation. Otherwise not.

Don Sprecher spent Wednesday night with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sprecher northwest of Milledgeville.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Wilson will observe their 50th wedding anniversary at their home on South Division street Wednesday, March 11 with open house from 2 until 5 o'clock.

European transport planes as a rule are smaller than those in America, because passenger loads there are not sufficient to warrant purchase of large airliners.

There were 43 state-operated air ports in the United States, on Feb. 1, 1936.

SPRINGFIELD TAKES FIRST TOURNEY TILT

Proviso Classed As Strong Quint in The Race

Chicago, March 6—(AP)—Springfield, the defending champion, and Proviso of Maywood, a hot pick to succeed the Solons in the throne room, were safely past their first tournament assignments today, but another favorite, Libertyville, had fallen.

Springfield, picked to get through its regional test without too much difficulty, trounced Williamsburg last night, 30 to 11. Proviso romped over Wheaton at LaGrange, 38 to 19. Both looked impressive enough to indicate they will go far.

Libertyville, winner of the Northwest conference title and winner of 13 straight victories, fell before Waukegan, 23 to 20, in one of the biggest upsets of the tournament since.

Spectators at the Dwight regional had more than their share of thrills. Both games went overtime, were decided by the same scores, with the winners making nine field goals and four free throws, to nine field goals and two foul goals, by the vanquished. Reddick defeated Wilmington, 22 to 20, in the first of the bitterly contested affairs, and Cullom conquered Pontiac in the other.

Frost Makes 27 Points

The top individual effort reported was credited to Lynn Frost of St. Charles. In helping his team to a 57 to 42 triumph over Oswego at Aurora, Frost scored 27 points. The sharp-shooting youngster dropped in 12 field goals and made good on three out of four free throw attempts, all before going out of the game on personal fouls in the fourth period.

The fattest team totals were turned in by Kinnmundy and Moline. Kinnmundy overwhelmed Okawville, 66 to 19, at Carlyle, while Moline gave a home crowd a treat by bowing over Sherrard, 63 to 15. Two regional titles, at Kewanee and Quincy, will be decided tonight. At Kewanee, two home teams, Kewanee high and Wethersfield, will battle it out. Wethersfield defeated Alpha, 26 to 24, to reach the final round, while Kewanee whipped Cambridge, 42 to 27. Quincy trounced Clayton, 43 to 23, and will meet Payson, which eliminated La Prairie, 33 to 25, in the other semi-final.

BOWDEN HANDS OPENING UPSET OF NET SEASON

Has Eliminated Wood, Borota, and Mangin Among Others

New York, Mar. 6—(AP)—Frank Bowden was back in the spotlight today after his annual upset of one of tennis' leading players.

In the semi-final round as the result of a victory over Karle Schroeder, Swedish champion and conqueror of some of Europe's premier players including Jean Borota and Baron Gottfried von Cramm, the sturdy New Yorker was regarded as "the man to beat" in the U. S. indoor championship.

Bowden started knocking over the favored fellows five years ago when he eliminated Sidney Wood, then Wimbledon champion, in the national grass championship at Forest Hills.

Since then he's accounted for Keith Gledhill, a former first ten star, Jean Borota in the 1934 indoor championship, and Gregory Mangin, the reigning indoor titleholder, whom he has beaten twice this year.

Schroeder Enthusiastic

Schroeder was so enthusiastic over Bowden's performance that he assured the American he will be invited to play in the Swedish indoor championship next January in Stockholm.

Provided Bowden maintains his form, it is virtually certain he will hurdle Leonard Hartman to get into the final and there's a strong probability that he will annex the title won three times in the last four years by Mangin. The semi-finals will be played tomorrow with Mangin figured to repel Wilmer Hines of Columbia, S. C.

Today's program called for semi-final matches in the women's doubles championship and two quarter-final matches in the men's doubles along with a sprinkling of mixed doubles.

No real moonstones are found in America. Most of them come from Europe.

FALL OF AN IRISH MAT EMPIRE

Dick Shikat, German heavyweight wrestler, grabbed that Irish whip out of hands during their championship bout in Madison Square Garden. When he had finished cracking it around the Mick's head, he climbed onto the mat throne. Here is an unusual action shot, taken through Shikat's legs, as O'Mahoney fell to defeat.

Al Hollingsworth May Get Call Mound Duty

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Pensacola, Fla.—The railbirds are predicting that Jimmy Ripple will be the fifth outfielder on the Giants roster in the coming season. Ripple is showing great form in training. They say he developed that long reach painting houses and hanging wall paper in his pre-baseball days.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Joe Glenn, the loquacious catcher of the Yankees, is showing plenty of power with the hickory these days. He was slashing some vicious drives through the mud and rain yesterday.

Clearwater, Fla.—Emil Leonard, the chubby Belgian of the Dodgers, is going to throw plenty of knuckle balls during the training season, whether the heavy clouters break their bats or not. Leonard won only two games last year and he thinks part of the reason might be that he laid off the knuckler just so the boys wouldn't split their favorite sticks last spring.

Miami, Fla.—Acting Manager Tom Sheehan of the Reds planned to start Al Hollingsworth, portly, against the Mackmen in the first of three scheduled games today, following with Don Brennan or Si Johnson. The Philadelphia team is due from Fort Myers by bus. Sheehan says the Reds are "getting there."

Mike Karakas of the Hawks and Tiny Thompson of the Bruins, both after the Georges Venzina memorial trophy which goes to the goalie with the best record at the end of the season, were facing each other across the ice but figures he will make a farm team. He was with El Paso last season.

Two times the puck was ripped at Karakas and twice it went in. Thirty-eight shots were taken at the Boston goalie to bring the same goal total for Chicago. These goalies each have had 49 goals scored against them this season.

The tie enabled the Bruins to go into a tie for third place with the New York Rangers in the American division of the National League.

The Detroit Red Wings downed the New York Americans 4-1 in New York. The win sent the Wings four points ahead of the second place Blackhawks in the American division.

Orlando, Fla.—Manager Bucky Harris of the Senators is frankly elated over the form first baseman Joe Kuhel is showing. He has been showing his old pep after a winter operation.

Havana, Cuba.—The Cardinals journeyed from Miami here without a sign of seasickness, and with only Sam Breadon worried. His worry was about the condition of camp's only absentee.

West Palm Beach, Fla.—Harland Clift's first thought when he joined the Browns yesterday was of those special model bats of his.

He found only one in the bat trunk and rushed an order for a dozen.

Then he went out for his opening practice and cracked out a flock of long drives.

It will take you into the secret corners of lovers' hearts!

Winter Haven, Fla.—It's to be a first division berth for the Phils this year, or at least, that is the confident prediction of Manager Jimmy Wilson after watching Leo Norris hold down shortstop. Norris came up from Minneapolis.

Fort Myers, Fla.—Two recruits, James Darn Oglesby, from Missouri, and Lovell (Chubby) Dean, of Duke University, have entered the race for the first base job vacated by Jimmy Foxx. They both are called hustlers.

Golden Gloves
Finals Tonight

Chicago, March 6—(AP)—Thirty-two amateur boxers will battle for Golden Gloves titles and qualification for the final Olympic tryouts before an expected crowd of 22,000 spectators tonight at the Chicago stadium.

The eight championship winners will be qualified to enter the Olympic tryouts, which will be held in the stadium the week of May 24.

Young Torchy Toda, professional champion of the land of the rising sun, yesterday came within one botched putt of tying Victor Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., who won the $2,500 Hollywood open tournament with a 72-hole score of 276.

Toda, nonetheless, proved himself the master for this tourney at least of such noted par-crackers as Bobby Cruckshank of Richmond, Willie MacFarlane of New York, Harry Cooper of Chicago, Johnny Revolta of Milwaukee, and Denny Shute of Boston.
